I traveled to Seville, Spain for a five week study abroad program, living with a host family. In addition to the Spanish language course I completed, I also researched how the local population in Spain views physical activities for physical fitness and how fitness facilities are used in many cities in Spain. I was interested in learning how different cultures view physical fitness and what sorts of activities the general population participates in and what is generally accepted by the Spanish culture, in regards to fitness.