Last minute notes:

Linda Copland has informed me that on Monday, June 12th, there is a planned mass demonstration at the University of Witswatersrand. Should she need to change plans, she will have the cellular number of both the Grace Hotel Driver (who is taking you to Soweto) and the Welcome Tour Driver (who is taking you to Wits).

We do not anticipate any problems, but are planning for any eventuality.

DAILY ITINERARY

(for more information on all of the places you will be visiting, visit: <http://www.sa-venues.com>)

June 10, 2000

TIME

ITINERARY

13:41	Depart Richmond Airport. TWA flight 3864. Check your bags straight through to Johannesburg and try and get your boarding passes for your SAA flight at this time. If you fail to do so you will have to check in at the SAA counter in New York.
15:11	Arrive JFK. Make your way to the Delta Terminal. Confirm that SAA haven't moved terminals!
17:55	Depart SAA airways flight 202 (from the Delta Terminal).

June 11, 2000

TIME

ITINERARY

14:30	Arrive Johannesburg International Airport. Proceed through customs and immigration. Welcome Tours (Flexi Wheels) will be waiting for you upon exit from the customs section. Locate the driver holding the sign with "University of Richmond" on it, and follow him to your transport to the Grace Hotel. Check in at the Grace Hotel. Ensure that you have received your "Welcome Kits" from Lezl van Vueran. She has promised to have them placed in your rooms. The kits contain your internal travel tickets, and information on South African as well as an insect repellent. NB. Important information regarding your entire visit is contained within these packages. Please use your free time today to familiarize yourselves with the items in the packages, as it will be useful for the duration of your visit. Rest of evening at Leisure. Traditionally, many places close on a Sunday. The Grace Hotel has informed me that the Rosebank Mall not far from your hotel, will be open till 5pm and there is the largest flea market in Johannesburg on the roof. Follow South African hours and resist the temptation to go to bed upon arrival. Shower, have some coffee and explore the neighborhood around you in groups and read the information in your packages.

PROFESSOR JOHN DANIEL

Professor of Politics, University of Durban, Westville
(Prof. Daniel will be a dinner guest on June 15)

John Daniel was born in South Africa and has a BA degree in Political Science and History from the University of Natal in South Africa. From 1966-68, he worked full-time for the national student trade union where he was President of the National Union of South African Students (NUSAS). During that period he hosted the visit to South Africa in June 1966 of the late Senator Robert Kennedy.

In 1968, John went into exile and remained outside South Africa for the next 23 years. During that time, he obtained an MA and Ph.D in Political Science from the State University of New York (SUNY) at Buffalo and then spent 11 years teaching political science at the University of Swaziland where he was head of department. In 1985, he was deported from Swaziland after the Swazi Government banned the ANC of South Africa from operating in that country. He then spent a year as a Research Fellow at the University of Amsterdam and five years as Africa editor of the London-based publishing firm, Zed Books.

In 1991, he returned to South Africa as a senior lecturer in International Relations at Rhodes University. In 1993, he was appointed to the chair in political science at the University of Durban- Westville, a post he still holds. Under the apartheid system, Westville was a university exclusively for Indian South Africans but it is now an open, non-racial college with a majority of African students.

In 1996, John was deployed to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission for three years as a senior researcher where he was responsible for documenting gross human rights violations committed by the apartheid state outside South Africa. He focussed his work on the Southern African region, particularly Namibia, Mozambique and Angola. He was also part of the small team, which wrote the five-volume final report of the Commission, released in October 1998. In addition to the section on violations outside South Africa, John wrote the historical introduction to the report and the findings and conclusion chapters.

In addition to publishing extensively on South and Southern Africa in the areas of political economy and foreign policy, John also teaches annually at the Department of Foreign Affairs Diplomatic Training Institute. His most recent book Voting for Democracy: Watershed Elections in Contemporary Anglophone Africa, co-authored with Roger Southall and Morris Szeftel, was published in 1999.

PROFESSOR RAPHAEL DE KADT

Director Political Science, Interdisciplinary Programmes, University of Natal, Durban

Raphael de Kadt is Director of both the Political Science Programme and the interdisciplinary programme in Politics, Philosophy and Economics at the University of Natal. He has been Editor-in-Chief of " THEORIA, a Journal of Social and Political Theory" since 1989. His publications have been mainly in the fields of political philosophy, modernization theory, education, and the political economy of South Africa. Most recently he has been co-author, in collaboration with Professor Johannes Fedderke and Dr John Luiz, of a series of major studies that have been concerned to explore the relationship between social, educational and political institutions and long-term economic growth in South Africa. These studies, published principally by ERS (Econometric Research Southern Africa), provide - among other data - comprehensive accounts of the patterns of human capital formation, the structure of political and civil rights and of political instability for most of the twentieth century.

Western Cape:

LOURENS MARTHINUS DU PLESSIS

Professor of Public Law at the University of Stellenbosch

Lourens Marthinus du Plessis is presently professor of Public Law at the University of Stellenbosch. He was formerly professor and Head of the Department of Philosophy of Law at the Potchefstroom University for Christian Higher Education (PU for CHE) and professor extraordinaire of Comparative and Public International Law at the University of the Western Cape. He obtained the degrees B Jur et Comm (1970), LLB cum laude (1972) and B Phil cum laude (1974) from the PU for CHE. In 1979 an LLD degree was awarded to him for a dissertation entitled Die Juridiese Relevansie van Christelike Geregtigheid (The Juridical Relevance of Christian Justice). He is the author of

- 7 books for the academic expert;
- 8 shorter academic monographs;
- 30 chapters in academic books;

- 5 research reports;
- 81 articles in scholarly journals;
- 6 book reviews.
- He has read 17 papers at international and 43 papers at national conferences and meetings.

His most well-known scholarly monographs are Die Professionele Gedrag van die Juris (The Professional Conduct of the Jurist) (Butterworths), The Interpretation of Statutes (Butterworths), An Introduction to Law (Juta) and Understanding South Africa's Transitional Bill of Rights (Juta) (co-authored by Hugh Corder). He is also the founding editor-in-chief of the Stellenbosch Law Review.

He is the recipient of various academic scholarships and awards including a University Travelling Fellowship of the Ernest Oppenheimer Memorial Trust (in 1995). He has been, since 1997, Director of the University of Stellenbosch / University of the Western Cape Research Unit for Legal and Constitutional Interpretation. The Unit was awarded to him by the Centre for Science Development of the Human Sciences Research Council on account of excellent research in the particular field.

He has also been a visiting professor at the University of Florida (College of Law) (1994 and 1998), the University of Hannover (1995) and Stanford University (School of Law) (1997).

His has also written 190 popular and popular scholarly articles on topical issues in news magazines, collective works and in the daily press, and has published a series of discourses on the political future of South Africa entitled Tien Perspektiewe (Ten Perspectives) (Tafelberg). Prof Du Plessis shows a keen interest in topical issues and in particular in matters pertaining to the political situation in South Africa. In December 1977 he played a leading role in drafting the Koinonia Declaration in which various aspects of the Government's apartheid policies (as well as the Government's conduct with regard to the death of Mr Steve Biko) was profoundly criticised two weeks before a white general election. Much of his scholarly work is closely related to his socio-political interest. He was, for example, actively involved in the HSRC Sports and Intergroup Relations Investigations. In his capacity as editor-in-chief of the Potchefstroom based journal, Woord en Daad (Word and Work) (from 1981 to 1986) he strongly advocated the cause of political, constitutional and socio-economic transformation in South Africa. During July 1987 he visited three Western African countries under the auspices of the Institute for a Democratic Alternative for South Africa (IDASA) and was a participant in talks that were held with members of the then banned African National Congress (ANC) in Dakar, Senegal. In February 1989 he was once again part of a contingent of South African jurists who held talks with the ANC in Harare, Zimbabwe on the topic: The Role of Law in a Society in Transition. During 1993 he was actively involved in the Multi-party Negotiating Process at the World Trade Centre, Kempton Park, chairing the Technical Committee on Fundamental Rights during the Transition. He was furthermore a member of the Council of the University of the North and President of the Law Teachers' Society. He is also member of the Magistrate's Commission established in terms of the Magistrates Act of 1993.

On 3 December 1971 he married Wina (Steyn) and the couple has three daughters: Carien, Anné and Elmiën. In his free time Prof Du Plessis likes to go hiking, to see art films and to listen to classical music.

THANDI LEWIN

Head: Transformation Office, University of Capetown

Former student, Ms Thandi Lewin, has been appointed UCT's Transformation Officer. Since Ms Lewin's appointment, the post has been centralized within UCT's administrative structure reporting to the Deputy Vice-Chancellor responsible for transformation, Professor Dan Ncayiyana.

"Transformation for me is something that is constantly contested, and understood differently by different people. I believe that to transform effectively, we all have to accept a radical change in outlook. To some extent this is already happening at UCT, but there is a lot more thinking and challenging to be done," said Ms Lewin.

In order to facilitate the transformation process at UCT, Ms Lewin is responsible for administering and supporting the University Transformation Forum Executive Committee (UTF Exco) and its working groups. One of the key challenges of 1998 is to transform the structure itself into an institutional forum.

The Higher Education Act, which became law at the end of last year, requires every tertiary institution to establish an institutional forum that represents all sectors of its community. The UTF Exco broadly fits this description, and has agreed to become this structure. However, to do this Ms Lewin believes the UTF Exco will need to become much more interactive with mainstream structures within UCT.

"The UTF Exco has taken up a number of major issues such as the restructuring of Council, proposing a new model for student governance, and tackling the problems of institutional culture, but it is slow to make decisions. It is, however, the most broadly representative body at UCT, and therefore extremely important. We have to work out a way of fulfilling our mandate within the limited capacity that we have, and interacting with other transformation-related activities happening across campus," said Ms Lewin.

As Transformation Officer, Ms Lewin is also responsible for providing support to all sectors represented at UTF Exco to ensure that they are able to participate fully in discussions. She also hopes to extend and increase communication between transformation structures and the rest of campus, and hopes that the University community will raise issues with her office.

An important part of Ms Lewin's work is the Institutional Culture Working Group. "This is an extremely important structure that is dealing with incredibly complex issues. My hope is that we can work out effective ways of improving this campus to create a place in which everyone is happy and fulfilled in what they do. This group is going to have to be proactive in the way we tackle things, but will also be listening carefully to people around campus, to find out what they are saying and what their problems are," said Ms Lewin.

Ms Lewin graduated from UCT with a degree in history and politics in 1995. As a student she was very involved in transformation issues and was a member of the Students' Representative Council (SRC) which helped form the UTF Exco. She was a member of UCT's SRC during her second and third years of study and she also served on the national executive committee of the South African Universities' SRC (SAU-SRC). Since graduating, Ms Lewin has worked for the Forum for African Women Educationalists South Africa (FAWESA), a network of women educationalists that works with gender equity issues in education.
